BISMARCK, Dak., Aug. 30.—(Special.)—The encampment is over. The great army is now in a position for the homeward march. It is already under way, through a picturesque landscape to the northeast. The failure to make an Indian outbreak, even under tremendous provocation, seems more than ever inexcusable. The settlers have come to Bismarck, where they have been given a hearty welcome. The soldiers are preparing to fall in and "do honor to the occasion."

Some of the Guests of the Commercials.

Gen. Ruger is not to be complimented, and Gen. Brooke, of course, is not to think himself so. But the people of Bismarck have determined to honor the men who have done so much for the settlement of the Northwest, and whose master on regardless

Scene in the Court-Room.

In accordance with this sentiment, the governor is said to be a committee with the Commercial Club and Board of Trade, and arrangements have been made for a grand reception to the soldiers. The failure to make an Indian outbreak, even under tremendous provocation, seems more than ever inexcusable. The settlers have come to Bismarck, where they have been given a hearty welcome. The soldiers are preparing to fall in and "do honor to the occasion."

Attorneys Lewis and Forrest.

Friendly relations exist between the representatives of the press and the officers. "He is a soldier," says Mr. Forrest, "a military gentleman." The press's acquaintance with Mr. Forrest was by accident in behalf of Gen. Custer in our city [illegible] and Mr. Longenecker. "He is an editor," answered Forrest, "and has been for a month or more."

"Well," growled Longenecker, "this is the first acknowledgment we have seen of that fact. I am glad you've caught about it at last."

Gen. Gilfillan got an opportunity to remark about this fact that had not been pressed and he could not take cognizance of Mr. Forrest's statement.

"Well," said Mr. Forrest, "I'll bring the matter before him and ask him his rating in the service."

"All right," said Longenecker, "we'll be there."

Gen. Custer has one of the handsomest ladies that have been seen in this city. She is a lady of rare beauty, and is very much admired by the officers of the army. Gen. Custer is a very handsome man, and is a great favorite with the ladies. He is a man of fine appearance, and is a gentleman in every sense of the word.

The above article was nearly, with a few changes, Lord Beaconsfield's speech at Aylesbury. Lord Beaconsfield does not believe in peace, with the offensive weapon at hand. New York exchanges may mostly quit scolding Boston. Boston is well aware that she has much stronger.—The Chicago press has been much stronger.—The Chicago press has been much stronger.—The Chicago press has been much stronger.

Statistics have value only because of the use to which they are put. Those who are using statistics to show that the Democratic party is in the wane and should retire in favor of the Republican party, are using statistics which have been before and since unpopular. The record of Congress, which is an American fact, is clear on the Democratic party. Whatever it has not done to build it has built—Congress, Capitol, Library, Government Printing Office, Treasury, Mint, Navy Yard, and the Supreme Court building. It found the country in the throes of secession, and left it in the midst of peace and prosperity. It found the Republican party in power, and left it in power. It found the Democratic party out of power, and left it out of power. It found the Democratic party in the minority in the House, and left it in the majority. It found the Democratic party in the minority in the Senate, and left it in the majority. It found the Democratic party in the minority in the Senate, and left it in the majority. NEW IDEAS ON SOCIALISM.

"SOCIALISM—A STUDY FOR THE CONSERVATIVE" BY VON GOTTL-GOTTLILIENFELD.

Dr. Gottl-Gottlilienfeld Urges Progressive Views Social Reformers on the Great Social Question—The Duty of All Men Desiring to See Permanent Social Progress Elsewhere in the Light and Instructive Lectures Now Current Volume.

One of the most important contributions to the literature of the social question recently is the article by that eminent socialist of the Fatherland leading, Professor Dr. Gottl-Gottlilienfeld, lecturer on the Karl Wilhelm Hertz Foundation at the Berlin Science Institute. The author is the English Science Institute, a professor of political science, and also privately a Jew. He has contributed numerous articles previously to the Economic Journal, English magazines, and to leading and other English magazines, and to a prominent contributor to the Catholic Word of New York. He is also engaged in the editorship of a considerable number of publications, especially the yearly book on capital entitled "The New Zeitgeist," and which has already run through several editions. In this work he endeavors to show how the interests and intelligence have led to advance and improvement in higher and purer forms. In the Economic Journal article, which has been brought to our attention, the author of that institution—which is to say, the leaders in the same line, having a little high-falutin in general politics. This is the case with the German socialist party, especially in the Reichstag, which has been in existence for many years in Germany. It is evident that the socialists do not wish to be considered as a party of the people, but as a party of the people, but as a party of the people, but

SANT' ILARIO.

F. MARION CRAWFORD'S NEW NOVEL.

Just Published. 12mo. Cloth, $1.50.

The New York Tribune says:

"The author shows steady and constant improvement in his art. 'Saint Ilario' is a continuation of the chronicles of the Saracinesca family. . . . One of the finest and deepest touches in a singularly powerful and beautiful story. . . . All this is admirably developed with a masterliness beyond praise. . . . Exceedingly clever and strong. . . . Not the least striking feature of 'Saint Ilario' is the accurate and profound knowledge of Italian society and the Italian character which it shows. It (the novel) must rank with 'Consuelo' as the best work the author has produced. It fulfils every requirement of artistic fiction. It brings out what is most impressive in human character and what is most interesting in human action. . . . It is natural, fluent in evolution, accordant with experience, graphic in description, penetrating in analysis, and absorbing in interest."
